

Double Trouble

There are over 2 million words in the English language which are divided up (depending on the job they do) into 'Parts of Speech' or WORD FAMILIES as we prefer to call them.

Confusingly, some identical words can be used by both the noun family and the verb family.

But it's easy to teach your kids how to tell the difference, using our colouring and sorting activity.

Double Trouble

Can you work out which word family the words below belong to? Are they nouns, verbs or both?

Circle the correct answer and colour your favourite Handy pictures.

Tip: you can put to before verbs, for example to kiss, and before nouns you can put a, an, the or some, for example: a kiss, the kiss, some kisses.
